Office Overview

Shook's Orange County office opened in 2003 as the result of our clients' need for representation in Southern California, combined with the reputation of partners bringing decades of national experience to the office.

The familiarity and experience of our team with the California state and federal courts and the relatively close proximity of our office to all Southern California courts provides added value through increased efficiency and reduced costs. Shook's Orange County office has 18 attorneys, with additional access to the resources of the firm's other national and international offices.

Shook's Orange County attorneys have successfully handled cases for Fortune 500 corporations, acting as national, regional and local counsel. As a result, they possess extensive experience in the courtroom and a broad local knowledge of the courts, judges and counsel throughout California. Our Orange County attorneys focus in a variety of practice areas and industries, including products liability, pharmaceutical and medical device defense, regulatory and compliance matters, commercial litigation, employment litigation, automotive litigation, design and construction disputes, and intellectual property. They have broad experience in consumer class actions; complex, consolidated and coordinated proceedings; mass tort; toxic tort; personal injury; amusement park litigation; and property damage litigation. Our Orange County office has represented defendants in state and federal court in a variety of class actions, often involving California's Unfair Competition Law (UCL) and Consumers Legal Remedies Act (CLRA).
